Bayberry Candle Tradition

Bayberry candles have been around in North America since Colonial times. Legend has it the burning of bayberry candles during the Yuletide Season would bring wealth & good luck throughout the New Year. May this legend come true for you.

Burn on both Christmas Eve & New Years Eve. Trim each wick to a maximum length of 3/8" before lighting. Failure to do so could lead to improper burning.

You light the candle when the 1st star appears. Most important, you must time the lighting of the candle so it will stay light 'til after midnight. Legend has it that will bring a year of prosperity & good fortune to the house.

For those attending candlelight church services on Christmas Eve or those heading out to party New Years Eve, be sure to burn the candle carefully--on a dish inside a kitchen sink. DO NOT extinguish the candle (that's bad luck). It must be allowed to burn out on its own. If the candle burns down to the socket, abundance will then bless everyone in your home.
